

Tiny Rooms with Big Personality

When faced with decorating tiny rooms, most of us play it safe with small-scale furniture and a neutral color scheme. We fear that bright colors and big patterns might overwhelm our small spaces; however, injecting bold personality into a tiny room can actually have the opposite effect. Sometimes, as these talented design bloggers prove, more is more when it comes to decorating small rooms.

LESS

BY PJ FEINSTEIN

Lavender Nursery Loaded with Style

The built-in bookcases and window seat might have cost this small room an extra 18 inches, but they couldn't take away any of its style. Megan of Honey We're Home didn't skimp on the details when decorating her baby girl's nursery. We especially love the striped purple and white ceiling and the oversize art.

Get more details at Honey We're Home.