A Budget-Friendly Option

For parents who don't want to spend a lot, this plastic bed frame is a great choice. No, it's not made of wood (and Maria Montessori never said that anything had to be made of wood by the way), and it comes in a few flashy character designs. But if you want to save some cash, this floor bed is a good option. It is low enough to work well for the intended purpose of giving a baby freedom of movement while keeping them safe. It even has built-in rails to prevent babies from accidentally rolling out at night. However, it isn't ideal for humid climates as the mattress sits directly on the floor.

Reviews

"I purchased this one because it is on the ground so no worries on getting in and out of it. Very durable and adorable! Great value for money spent."
