The Best Double Strollers for Two (or More) Kids

Yes, they're easy to maneuver. We promise.

For parents of multiple kids, finding the best double stroller is truly a godsend. You can't beat the convenience of being able to haul both kids (or even three of them) to the park or beach. Double strollers for infants and toddlers come in numerous configurations, but no matter the layout, the best ones come with features like a one-handed fold, front-wheel suspension, extended canopies, and foot and hand brakes. Many double strollers have optional storage expansion, sun shades, rain covers, and cup holders for morning coffee or your sippy cups.

In side-by-side or double-wide strollers, kids sit next to each other, allowing you to best configure each seat separately for naps and personalized comfort. These are best when kids are roughly the same age. Inline models have one seat located in front of the other, and those are better for kids of different ages and sizes, since one seat is always more spacious than the other.

The Best Side by Side Double Strollers

Delta Children Side by Side Double Stroller

A basic, ultra-lightweight stroller for a great price, it's easy to collapse and even easier to use. This stroller clocks in at 20 pounds, so it's not a monster to push around. The price is right, and you get a canopy for sun protection, multi-position recline, a five point safety harness with soft shoulder pads, and a cup holder for much-needed coffee.
