DIAPERS

The ultimate baby-changing battle station.

Changing diapers, and changing diapers, and changing diapers! Diapers, diapers, diapers.

That's life for the first year or so, and then it starts to slow down, thankfully. Something that can make the whole experience much easier is getting a good diaper changing table for your nursery.

They will become your baby changing battle station; all of the tools of the trade can be stored inside, and the comfortable pad is the ideal place to change baby.

So, what is the best baby changing table and pad? It's up to you, but we have some suggestions that you'll probably really like! Before we get to that, there are a few other things we should cover, first.

#2. Delta Children Eclipse

A lower-priced and smaller option, the Delta Children Eclipse (click here to see it on Amazon) is also a really great changing table that just might work for you.

It has 2 storage shelves to store all of your diapering supplies and also comes with a changing pad, so you don't have to purchase one separately.

The table requires some assembly to put together, but it's really simple and takes only about 20 minutes to do so. The structure is pretty solid, but the material used isn't quite as high quality as the Athena Leila; it's not solid wood.

The changing pad is adequate and comes with a strap to keep baby secured in, and the sides are all high. The structure itself measures 39.4 x 24.4 x 5.9 inches and weighs just over 33 pounds when assembled, so it's light enough that you can move it from room to room if need be.

The only downside is that you can't really use a 3rd party changing pad with the table, as it's not quite big enough to fit a standard-sized one. That's not really a big deal, because the supplied one is pretty good on its own.
