

Toy Storage Ideas For Small Homes That Prevent Clutter & Chaos

Living in 1,200 square feet with a husband, two cats, two beagles, and a toddler has been an adventure. We sure love it, but it makes some things more challenging for us than families in larger homes (with playrooms and extra space). We needed toy storage ideas for small homes stat, once my son grew from infant to toddler and came with eight million items.

Honestly, I feel like our home still isn't even that small compared to other families, but when it comes to clutter, we definitely notice if my son's toys aren't tucked away — because when stuff is everywhere, it drives me absolutely insane.

2. Delta Children 9-Bin Deluxe Toy Organizer

9 Bin Deluxe Toy Organizer - Delta Children

Target | $50

SEE ON TARGET

Durenberger recommends these colorful toy bins. "They make a great addition to any kid's room, and are decorative enough to be in a main living room, for example. The multiple organizers within the unit allow for toys to be separated, making it easy to find certain ones."