Target

Trade in your old car seat at Target for a 20 percent off coupon you can use on strollers, car seats, playards and more.

If nesting for your second baby means replacing some of your first baby's gear, you're in luck: Target's annual car seat trade-in event kicked off today, and it's a great opportunity to save big on a new car seat, stroller, travel system and other select baby products.

How to take part in Target's car seat trade-in event

It's incredibly easy: All you need to do in order to get your coupon is bring an old car seat to the Guest Services desk at your local Target store before May 4, 2019. There will be a box at the desk where you can drop off your car seat. You'll then be given a 20 percent off coupon that can be redeemed towards a new car seat, booster seat, stroller, high chair, bouncer and more baby gear for a limited time. The coupon is valid until May 11, 2019, and you can use it either in store or online.

According to Target's website, you can trade in any type of car seat during the event, including models that are expired or have been damaged. Material from your old car seat will be recycled to make new metal and plastic products, making this an eco-friendly way to get rid of seats that are no longer safe to use. The program, which launched back in 2016, has helped recycle more than 496,000 car seats to date.
