|--------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| Bog                | Bog - is about the realization of potential, and for increasing our ability to hold potential for new creation. It can be used to support any creative act, but it is especially applicable for women, to help them hold the feminine heart space as a chalice for creating new life, and as a source of nurturing energy for their families.                                                                                                                                                         | Fire Opal |
| Fireweed           | Fire Opal - releases blockages in our energy pathways to allow more Earth energy to rise up into the body and into all of the chakras. This helps the body learn to hold on to this additional energy, rather than making it available for immediate use, so reserves can be built up. Fire Opal facilitates long term recovery from illness or overwork by charging our reserves, starting with the parts of our system that are the most depleted.                                                  |           |
| Grass of Parnassus | Fireweed - stimulates the renewal of energies on all levels of our being. It is a powerful catalyst for growth and transformation that encourages us to release anything that is no longer appropriate or useful in our lives, so that we can create new experiences free from the limitations of the past.                                                                                                                                                                                           |           |
| Opal               | Go-Create - is designed to help you co-create what you want, need, and desire in your life with less resistance and more ease, efficiency and effectiveness. This formula will help you clear limiting beliefs that you are holding from past experiences, enhance your ability to feel worthy to receive your heart's desire, and find the energies of trust, faith, and gratitude that will empower you to hold a vibration that is in alignment with what you truly desire to create in your life. |           |
| Peridot            | Grass of Parnassus - offers a fountain of white light that is nourishing to all levels of our being. Its energy is effervescent, joyful, uplifting and liberating. Useful when we feel the need to cleanse and charge up our energy fields, and helps us attract increased levels of energetic nourishment from nature.                                                                                                                                                                               | Spiraea   |
|                    | Opal - rebuilds the light body. It replenishes chi, or life force, bringing it first to where it is most needed. It also helps balance out the energetic relationships between the individual chakras so that the whole system can work more efficiently.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |           |
|                    | Peridot - the stone of new beginnings. This elixir provides support and protection for any new cycle of growth or experience, as it helps us create a fresh, clear space in the heart for something new to be born into. Peridot stabilizes the heart and subtle bodies during the incubation period of new ideas and creative projects, and supports deep experiences of healing and transformation where there is a rebirth of awareness and energy.                                                |           |
|                    | Spiraea - helps us open to an awareness of nurturing—the process whereby all living things nourish one another through continual stages of growth. Spiraea works with our patterns of resistance to growth, our attempts to exist in a static condition independent of the continually evolving forces of change that permeate the living world. It helps us experience life as a flow of energy that is in a constant state of metamorphosis between one form and the next.                          |           |
