What are gem essences and how are they made? At Alaskan Essences, we use mineral specimens to make essences in the same way we make flower essences. An infusion made from the energy imprint of a specific mineral is called a gem elixir or gem essence. Each of our gem elixirs are cocreated in a unique natural Alaskan environment with a conscious consideration of the particular elemental qualities the locations embody. We utilize the energy of bogs, meadows, glaciers, rivers and glacial lakes to support and anchor the healing quality of each specific stone. Why are gem essences important? When our vibration increases as a result of our spiritual growth, our body often requires support to embody the energetic changes. Gem elixirs help us anchor the expanding consciousness in our body, making it easier to maintain stability during times of spiritual growth. They improve the connection between our consciousness, physical body and the Earth, providing strength and stability for deep healing and integration.

How do gem essences work? The action of gem elixirs is direct and immediate—they adjust our inner flow of energy so we feel grounded and comfortable in our physical body. They help to cleanse, activate, and recharge the chakras and our etheric, emotional, mental and spiritual subtle bodies so we function as we were designed to, as a unified whole.

Red Quartz: awareness of our energetic interactions with others Red Quartz gem elixir is helpful when we feel physical and energetic vulnerability in the sacral area of our body. It brings stability protection, and containment to the second (sacral) chakra. It also helps us become more aware of the energy and information we are sending and receiving at this level. Red Quartz helps us contract our energetic boundaries. It restores emotional and sexual integrity when our sexual expression has been compromised or misaligned by emotional pain and trauma. Red Quartz reminds us of how it feels to be safe and Gold: empowerment through knowing and feeling our true value Gold gem elixir brings strength, solidity, and balance to the third chakra (solar plexus) which is the energetic core of our personal power and self-esteem. When we don't or can't sense our inherent value we can feel powerless and threatened, and susceptible to having the values of others imposed upon us. Gold essence helps us embrace our inner value and tap into our inner truth, joy, and wisdom as a constant source of creative power, so we can express who we really are. It empowers us with fresh eyes to see value in ourselves and others when we didn't see it before. This is the go-to gem elixir for increasing self-esteem and confidence in our ability to create!

This lovely green stone embodies the energy of love for the Earth. Its essence is helpful when we feel alienated or not at home on the planet. It helps bring the fourth (heart) chakra into a harmonious union with the heart chakra of the Earth, helping us accept the Earth as our home and to feel the pleasure of being part of it. Chrysoprase helps us focus on a more heart-centered and grounded position, which calms our emotions and unwinds the tension of worry and frustration. It is an antidote to overwork by encouraging us to take time to enjoy the simple pleasures of life, rather than constantly surrendering to the compulsion of getting things done. There will always be more to do, and if 'doing' is our primary focus, we will eventually lose our vitality and burn out. Chrysoprase reminds us that the nurturing and nourishment we need to thrive comes from our enjoyment of life.

context, it will work to release the stress and disharmony from the situation so full communication can be reestablished between that person's body, their personal energy field and the Earth. Green Jasper: improving the flow of feminine energy in the body This gem elixir strengthens our connection to the earth, increasing our vitality and our healthy expression of earthly sensuality. It opens the first chakra and the chakras in our feet to allow soft and gentle energy from the Earth to flow upwards and envelope the heart with love. This essence releases congestion along the energy pathways that lie between the earth and the heart. It specifically promotes a consistent flow of sexual energy when there has been a disruption to
