Synergy was created by Stefan Laursen when he was 13-years old and needed a wetsuit to compete in his first triathlon. He couldn't afford to buy a suit, so he bought the materials and made his own at the Waldorf school he was attending. Therein began his love for the sport as he spent the next few decades racing and innovating wetsuit designs.

At 16, Stefan turned professional and a few years later placed 2nd in the USA Professional USAT Championship. He has since earned several National and Pan-American titles, and was also a member of both the Olympic and national team.

As other swimmers and professional athletes sought his wetsuits, Synergy has become an established brand, whose primary vision is about inventing new technologies and designs that truly benefit athletes and elevate performance.

Today Synergy has grown into one of the largest sellers of triathlon wetsuits and apparel in the world. Creating a culture where innovation, excellence and teamwork are valued above all else is the guiding principle behind Synergy.
