CARA GORDON, ARUA

Cara studied Fine Art at Newcastle University, in England. On graduating, she moved to Spain where she lived for 20 years. Returning to Belfast in 2010, she set up her studio in the city, where the urban landscape has provided much of the inspiration for her mixed media art.

Based on fleeting observations seen from the window of her studio, this new body of work represents a change in direction for her. The paintings depict not only figures in the environment but also reflect the constantly changing light, the weather and the seasons.

Experimentation, using different processes and using unlikely tools to apply paint, is fundamental to her method of working. The incidental, the unplanned, the accidental - all play a vital role in the development of a piece of artwork.

In pieces such as 'Winter Bathscape, Donegal' and 'Things left Behind' we can see a fascination for disused, familiar objects turning up in unlikely locations, generating speculation on the history of the object while at the same time offering a reflection on the passing of time.

Cara exhibits widely throughout Ireland and, as well as a large following of private collectors, she has work in collections of the Arts Council of Northern Ireland (ACNI) and the Office of Public Works (OPW), Dublin.

Among her many awards is the 2021 Perpetual Gold Medal from the Royal Ulster Academy, of which she is now an associate member.
