JOE WEBB

Joe Webb (1976) creates hand made collages with a message. Webb reimagines found imagery using simple and concise edits to make thought-provoking artworks. He tackles issues such as the environment, war, inequality - and questions our place in the universe asking us to become more aware, conscious and content.

"There is an element of serendipity in finding images that work together that can't be replicated in the digital world. I wanted to get back to basics so set myself a simple rule of working from just two images, it's interesting to find what narratives appear when two conflicting ideas are juxtaposed. Some of the ideas reflect on the state of world today, like a 1950's idea of the future that went wrong."

-Joe Webb

Borne out of the chaos of 2020 and the hard times being endured by artists all around the world, Open Doors Gallery and Setanta Books have teamed up for a new collaborative project looking to highlight the work of a broad range of emerging or unpublished photographic artists. This ongoing series of limited edition publications will feature a new artist bi-monthly.
