JOSHUA K. JACKSON

SLEEPLESS IN SOHO - JOSHUA K. JACKSON

Sleepless in Soho is Joshua K. Jackson's debut monograph.

For three years, Jackson walked through the lamp-lit and neon-filled streets of Soho, turning to photography initially as a way to escape the frustrations of insomnia.

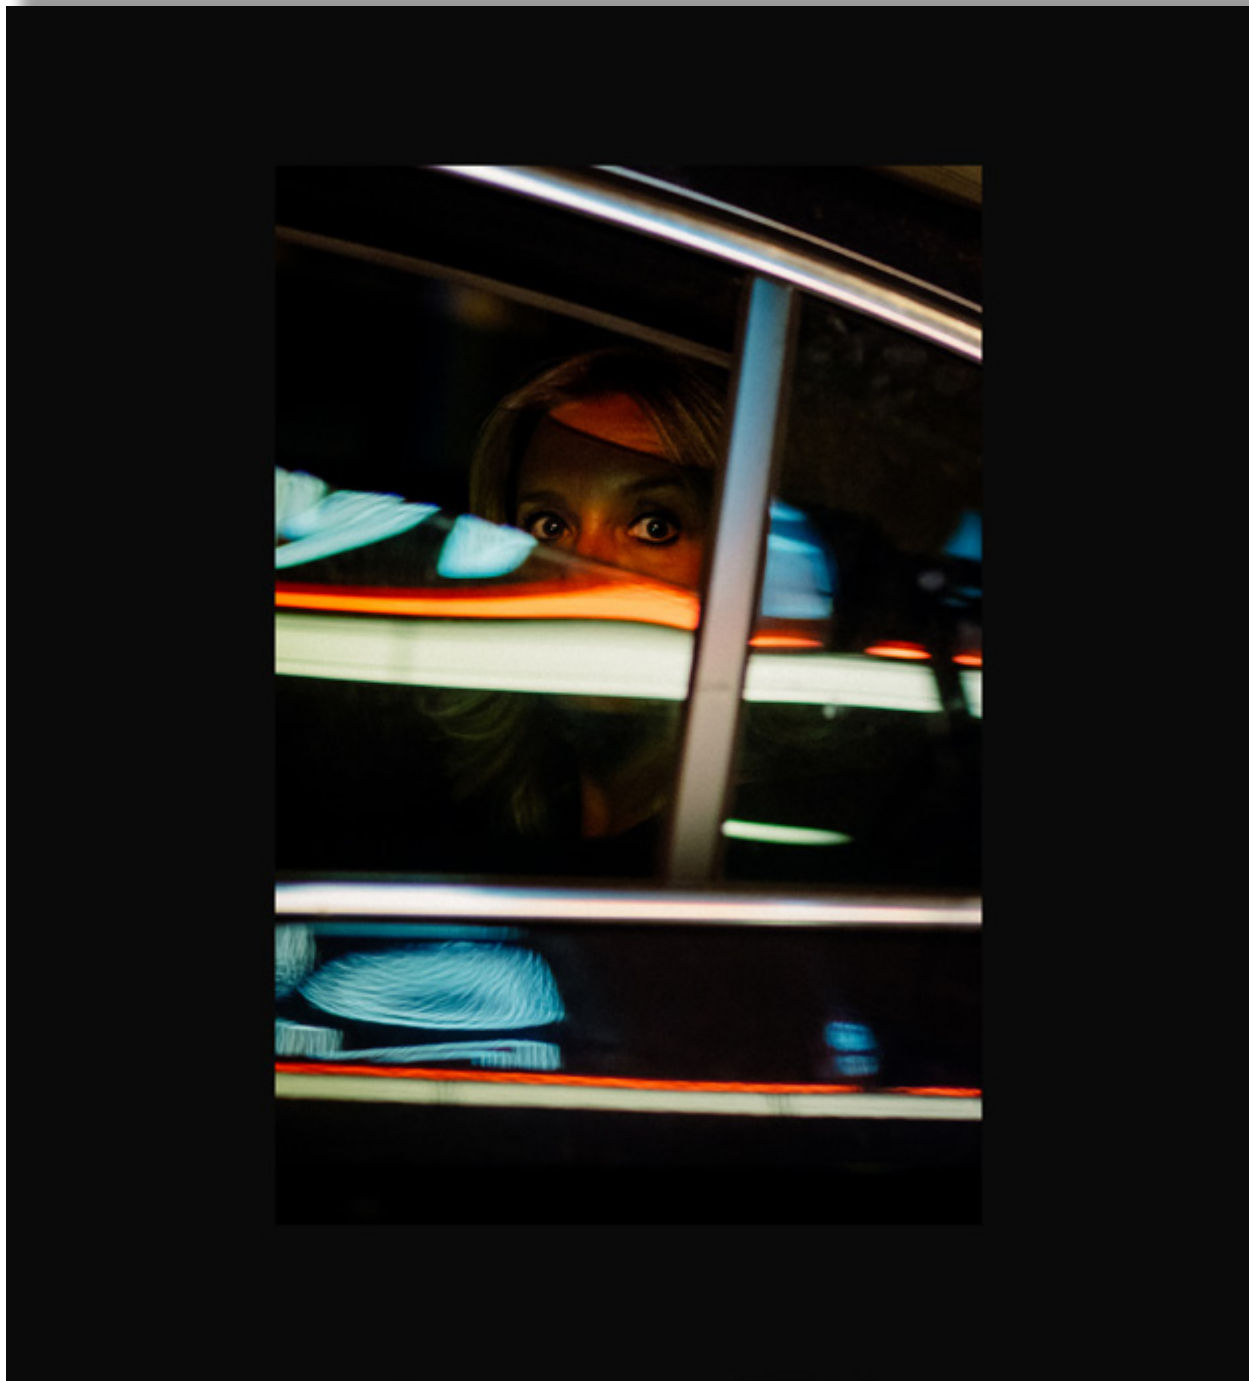

Jackson's work from this period, reveals the complex and intense atmosphere in London's best known entertainment district — observing the juxtaposition between the Soho of today and the faded character of its past.

*Guided on by the flickering of neon lights
I know well the hours filled with sleepers dreams
I search them peacefully as I journey through the nights.*

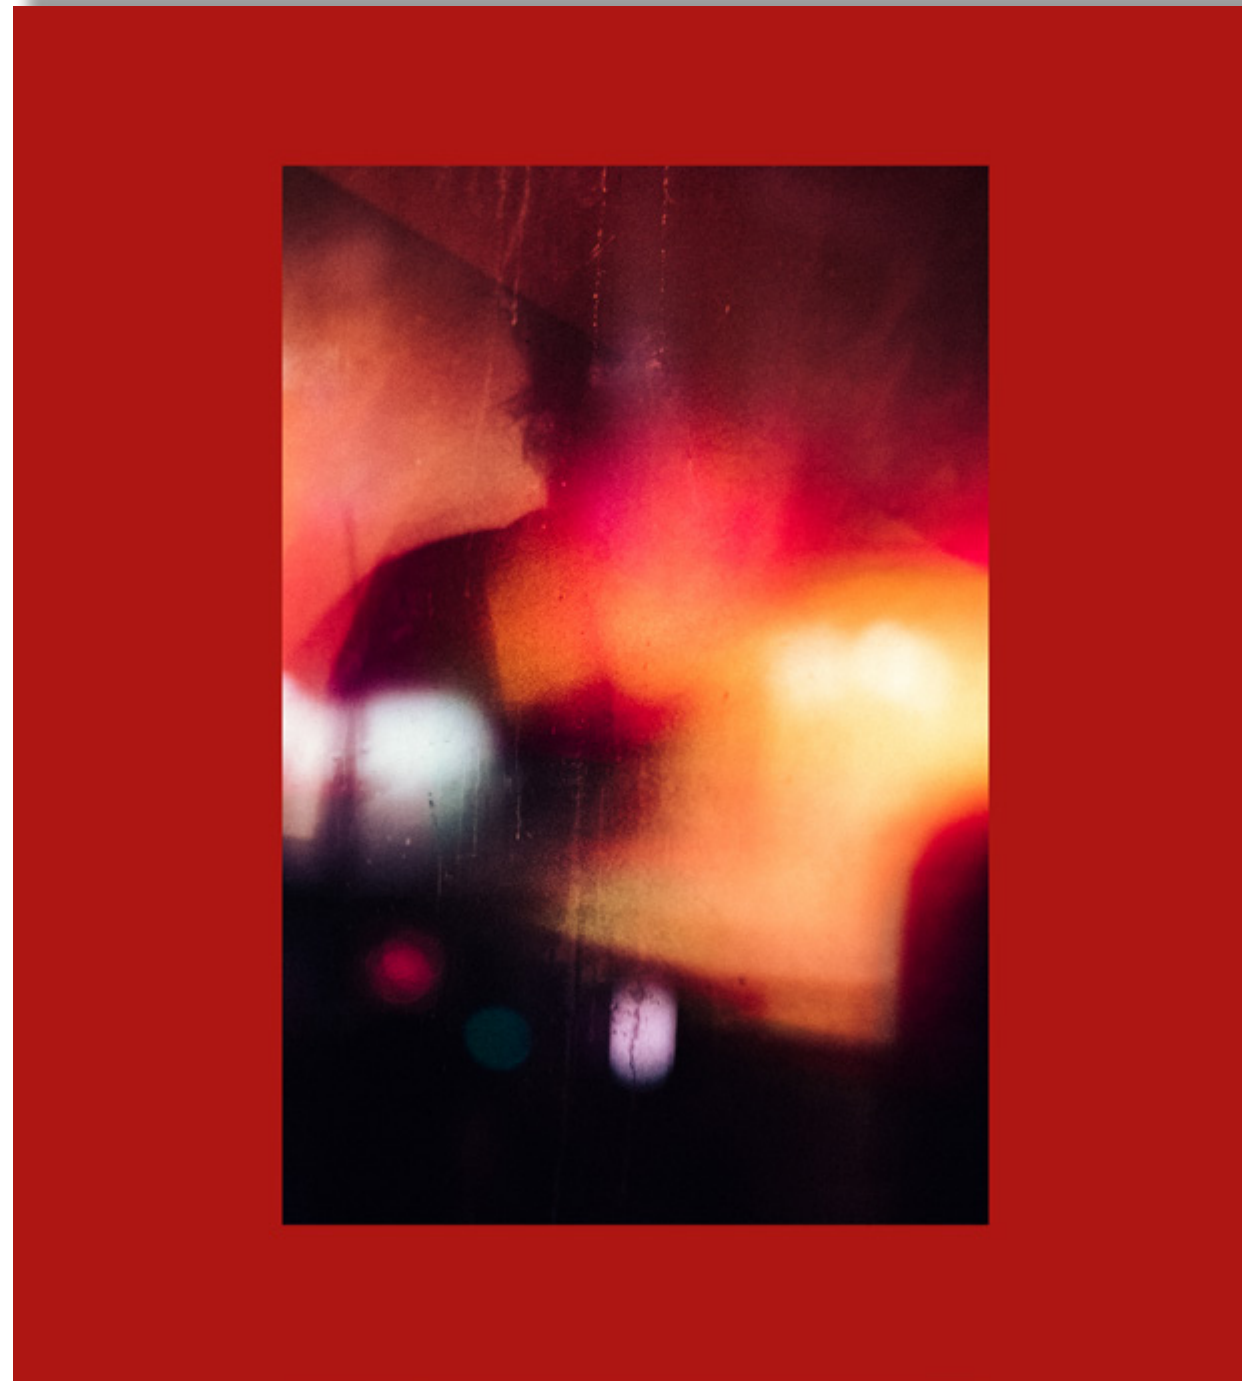

(An extract from Sarah Tucker's poem included in the book)

The photographs were made between January 2017 and December 2019.

Joshua K. Jackson (b. 1984) is a British photographer based in London, UK. His work focuses on life within cities; exploring the relationship between people and places, expressed through a rich visual language of colour and abstraction.
