📖 TESTING PROCEDURE FOR LEATHER RECOLORING BALM

Before applying the leather recoloring balm to your leather item, it is crucial to test it in an inconspicuous area to ensure compatibility and avoid any adverse reactions. Follow the steps below:

1. Find a hidden corner on your leather item for testing, preferably in an area not easily visible during regular use.
2. Apply a small amount of leather balm to the test area using a soft cloth or sponge.
3. Gently rub the balm into the leather and allow it to dry completely.
4. Once dry, check if the balm has been absorbed satisfactorily and doesn't come off when exposed to water.
5. If the test is successful and you're satisfied with the results, proceed with the application process.

📖 STEP BY STEP INSTRUCTIONS

Follow these steps to apply the conditioning balm to your leather item:

1. Clean the area to be treated by removing any dirt, dust, and leather debris. These can prevent the balm from being absorbed properly. Make sure the area is dry before moving on to the next step.
2. Apply a thin layer of balm to a sponge and dab it evenly over the area in need of repair. Allow the first layer to dry completely before proceeding.
3. Once the initial layer is dry, apply the same amount of balm as needed, repeating the process until you achieve the desired finish. If you're not satisfied with the results, you can remove the balm with a cloth while it's still wet.
4. After achieving the desired result, we recommend applying a final coat of FORTIVO leather conditioner to lock the color and condition the leather.

❓ FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q: Can the Leather Recoloring Balm be used on materials other than leather, such as fabric or suede?
A: The Leather Recoloring Balm is specifically formulated for leather use only. It is not recommended for fabric or suede. While it might work on some faux leather, we cannot guarantee its effectiveness.

Q: How can I avoid streaks or scratches when applying the Leather Recoloring Balm?

A: To avoid streaks or scratches, apply the Leather Recoloring Balm by either using a circular motion or by dabbing gently and slowly. Our customers have found both these methods to be successful in applying the balm without streaking. We always recommend testing in a corner before you apply it on the entire leather surface.

Q: The balm feels sticky after drying. What should I do?

A: We always recommend to test the balm in a corner before applying on the entire item to make sure it is compatible with the leather type. Applying a leather conditioner can help restore the softness and reduce the stickiness.

Q: Will the Leather Recoloring Balm stain other items or come off easily?

A: The Leather Recoloring Balm is durable and should not come off or stain other items. Follow the instructions, clean the surface well, and let it dry fully before using the treated item.

Q: What is the drying time for the Leather Recoloring Balm?

A: The Leather Recoloring Balm typically takes 4-8 hours to dry fully. We suggest waiting 24 hours before applying additional products like leather conditioner. Keep in mind that drying times may vary depending on the type of leather and environmental conditions. Allow the product to dry completely before using the treated item.
