COIL + DRIFT

A single blackened brass stem drops from the ceiling with six bent brass arms reaching out culminating in leaf-like bent brass shades. The shades appear to weigh down their arms, pulling each arm downward (or maybe they are reaching upward like a plant that has just enjoyed a Summer rainstorm after a long dry spell). The arms grow out of the stem in opposing pairs with each arm resting on its own horizontal plane making the chandelier attractive from all vantage points.
