Just as nature and fashion influence Jenny's work as an illustrator, a brand-new line of avian and floral bedding by Laura Ashley sparked the design for both the master bedroom and a girls' bedroom. Jenny, who fondly recalls wearing Laura Ashley dresses as a child, fell in love with the brand all over again after reconnecting with a friend who works for the company's Charlotte-based U.S. headquarters. "I love bird prints because they mix nostalgia with the modern," says Jenny. She describes her use of the colorful, classic prints as a way to add Southern charm to the rest of her palette. Orange throw pillows create cohesion between the feminine botanicals on the bed and the traditional Greek key trim on the draperies. (Opposite) In a bedroom for two of the Fuller girls, Jenny continued the nostalgic theme by pairing an antique twin bed with one from her own childhood. A fresh coat of white paint and identical linens elevate the mismatched duo.
