AFOAM

ACOUSTIC & FIRE

Tekfon AFOAM is a Fire rated high Acoustic open cell black polyurethane foam.

Tekfon AFOAM offers an effective solution due to its excellent sound absorption properties in low frequency ranges, as well as obtaining high levels of acoustic absorption in both the medium and high frequency areas. Tekfon AFOAM acts as a good absorbing membrane across the full acoustic frequency spectrum, when used as a system with various dense acoustic boards and suitable facing mediums.

TekGroup manufacture a number of product ranges using AFOAM, used as a facing or core for use in floors, walls, ceilings, heating and ventilation (HVAC), offshore and marine use, original equipment manufactures (OEM), for the construction envelope and any application where an acoustic solution is required.

Tekfon AFOAM is a flexible open cell structured polyurethane foam having superior acoustic qualities, giving excellent sound absorption characteristics, as well as having a high fire resistance.

The actual performance of Tekfon AFOAM is complex and a subjective subject which must be calculated by an acoustician on a job-to-job basis as it will be subject to different criteria's taking into account shapes, internal size, other structural components along with the environment the overall performances will generally produce results close to the performance guidance figures.
