Welcoming The Cooler Weather

As the days get shorter once again, it's natural to feel a gentle instinctual pull to turn inwards and spend more time at home. This Autumn we hope you are inspired to get creative and comfortable. This is your cue to create an inspiring world where textures create depth and intrigue while natural fibres bring softness and comfort. We hope these pages inspire positive changes in your home.

Burl Wood Is Having A Moment

Burl wood, which was popularised by its use in Art Deco and Hollywood Regency decor, has made it back to the main stage. Characterised by intricate grain patterns formed as a response to stress or injury in trees, it is highly sought after for its beauty and strength. Various types of trees can produce burl wood, with certain hardwood species yielding particularly stunning examples. While the exact process of burl formation is not fully understood, its uniqueness and rarity contribute to its appeal. Burl wood's irregular patterns add character and surprise to any space, with each piece being one-of-a-kind.

Light The Way

Since its introduction to the Trit Range last year, the dBodhi collection has cemented itself as a key part of our offering. Their furniture and accessories are made from recycled teak and other natural materials like coconut palms. From their base in Indonesia, dBodhi focuses on sustainable and natural production methods in a warehouse that is free from plastic. The materials used in each piece are left as close as possible to their natural state, keeping your home connected to the natural world.

Clara Sofa

Made to emulate the softness and comfort of the Felix Sofa, Clara offers a super soft, hypo allergenic slip cover sofa in a soft parchment linen. Using new technology of Silicone Fibre Ball as the base for the filling it emulates the softness of down without the need for feathers. The simple design and versatile linen cover means the Clara suits both lighter oak timber schemes and our Autumn walnut tones.
