

hey gorgeous!

We're so glad you've downloaded this Inspiration PDF. We're here to demystify how to craft the perfect wording for your stationery, and hope this helps you put together the wording of your dreams.

We've covered a range of styles and tones, from formal to casual and a few in-between, to give you a head start. And if you need a bit of advice or have any questions about anything wording-related for your stationery, don't hesitate to get in touch - just ping out with an email or call. We're always happy to chat!

the basics

DON'T FORGET TO INCLUDE THE MOST IMPORTANT DETAILS!

The very basic information that you need to include are the most obvious - so always make sure you've got the following included:

♥ Your names, exactly how you want them to be printed.

Do you want to use your full names, just your first names, or do you go by a nickname that everyone uses for you?

♥ Your wedding date.

Depending on how formal you want your wording to be, it can be a full formal display of "Saturday the twenty fifth of October, two thousand and twenty five" right down to the ultra-modern "25.10.25".

♥ General wedding location.

The best thing about Save the Date wording is that you don't have to put an exact location or venue down - all you need to really include is the general area, state or country.

♥ Invitation to follow line.

This gives your guests the heads-up that you'll be sending out invitations, so they don't need to worry about getting in touch with you for the wedding day details.

And that's all you need - Save the Dates are simple, easy, and quick!
