

hey gorgeous!

We're so glad you've downloaded this Inspiration PDF. We're here to demystify how to craft the perfect wording for your stationery, and hope this helps you put together the wording of your dreams.

We've covered a range of styles and tones, from formal to casual and a few in-between, to give you a head start. And if you need a bit of advice or have any questions about anything wording-related for your stationery, don't hesitate to get in touch - just ping out with an email or call. We're always happy to chat!

the basics

DON'T FORGET TO INCLUDE THE MOST IMPORTANT DETAILS!

The very basic information that you need to include are the most obvious - so always make sure you've got the following included:

♥ Your names, exactly how you want them to be printed.

Do you want to use your full names, just your first names, or do you go by a nickname that everyone uses for you?

♥ Your wedding date.

Depending on how formal you want your wording to be, it can be a full formal display of "Saturday the twenty fifth of October, two thousand and twenty five" right down to the ultra-modern "25.10.25".

♥ Venue names and addresses.

You'll want to include the street number, street name, suburb, city and state.

Generally you don't need to worry about including the postcode or country unless it's a destination wedding - particularly in countries such as Japan, Croatia, or the US, where the country and postcode inclusion is a must to ensure your guests head to the right spot!

♥ Ceremony and Reception start times.

If you want guests to arrive earlier for the ceremony, make a note of that as well. And if you're doing a pre-dinner cocktails or drinks thing, include the time for that as well.

And if your reception has a hard ending/finishing time, don't forget to include that too!

♥ RSVP-by date

Always give your guests a deadline to RSVP by, just to take some of the stress off of your shoulders so you can make sure you have all your final head counts and guest lists to the venue and your suppliers in time, so you can have everything ready well before the big day.

We generally recommend aiming for your RSVP-by date to be at least 6-8 weeks before your wedding day to give you as much room to move as possible.

♥ Dress code, if you're having one.

Especially important if you want your wedding to be white or black tie attire - this gives your guests a heads-up as to what level of formality to expect and dress for.

Now on to the inspiration!
