The Top 3 Reasons Why Walk-in Doors Fail

In cold storage, walk-in door integrity is crucial, as any failure not only compromises goods but also causes financial losses. Understanding door failure causes is key to finding reliable solutions.

1

Hinge Wear and Neglect

Neglect causes deterioration of the nylon bushing in hinges, leading to door sagging and floor scraping. This damages the door's structure, often requiring complete replacement.

2

Hinge Mounting Wood Rot

Using wood for hinge mounting in low-quality doors leads to moisture-induced rot, destabilizing the door and causing hardware detachment or sagging, necessitating full replacement.

Freezer Door Jamb Heater Wire Failure

Failure of the perimeter heating wire in freezer door jambs leads to ice buildup, hindering the door's seal. Forceful closures against ice can irreparably damage both door and jamb, often requiring comprehensive retrofit replacement.

Additional Challenges with Current Walk-in Doors

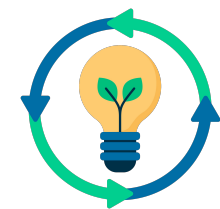

-  Ice Buildup
-  Temperature Fluctuations
-  Wear and Tear
-  Hinge Wear
-  Seal Damage
-  Moisture Infiltration
-  Mechanical Issues

-  Lack of Maintenance
-  Faulty Components
-  Structural Issues
-  Material Degradation
-  Impact Damage
-  Improper Usage
-  Age
