Mackenzie Martin, creator of a popular true crime podcast, has made it her mission to find the hidden heads of the victims of serial killer Robert Sinclair Peters, hoping to win back her thrill-seeking audience. She and her producer friend Assia head for New Hampshire, supported financially by Jonathan O'Connor, a super-rich American-born Montreal lawyer, who himself lost his spouse during a series of bloody murders.

It doesn't take the two women long to realize that they are not welcome in the small town where the murderer grew up. As she follows the clues left by the so-called "Rob S. Pierre of New England", Mackenzie will take more and more risks, to the point of putting her life and that of her friend in danger to move the investigation forward.

Will she be able to solve this case and obtain justice for the victims? Podcast listeners—and readers!—will find out in the final episode!
