Sydell, Inc. is proud to be a third-generation family company. Over 40 years ago, John Lynch and his parents started the company with an idea to manufacture innovative lambing pens. Today, those lambing pens remain a staple in Sydell's product line. Over the years, John's wife and two daughters have been instrumental in growing and developing Sydell into what it is today. Our family is proud to find our products on family farms throughout North America.

One of our most rewarding experiences is loading a truck with our American-made products to serve the needs of farms, fairgrounds, universities, research facilities and commercial operations. Our team of hard-working craftsmen are the heart of our company. With decades of experience, we are determined to deliver the best products to you, our customer.

Sydell's sales team has decades of experience. Our customers know Kyle, Jake and Steve by name. Their first-hand knowledge as producers and innovators for Sydell is invaluable when helping customers determine which products best serve their needs. You can count on our team to be here to help you each step of the way. Whether you are a new or experienced producer, we're here to deliver the products and service you need.
