

CAT INJURIES AND ABSCESS

Bioptron Light Therapy Treatments for the Family

I found the Bioptron Light invaluable for those times when my ever-active cat went out on a night's hunting and returned limping and holding a paw up - even to the extent one morning when he returned with an extremely swollen front leg. The Bioptron Light had almost instant impact and I found the cat was the quickest to respond to treatment. He soaked it up, his body repaired almost immediately, and he walked off as soon as he felt the treatment had worked! He knew exactly when and how much treatment he needed and would sit patiently only as long as treatment was required. I also treated a large abscess on his neck one day which appeared and grew so fast that my vet advised that if it hadn't improved by the next morning I take him in so that they could lance it and release the pus. I started treating it with short bursts of blue light and by next morning it had burst open and released the most amazing amount of pus. So all he needed was antibiotics to help him in case of infection.

Sadly Carlos is no longer with us due to a road accident
