

INJURY AFTER POLO

A horse came off the polo field with blood dripping from its mouth. It had been hit by a mallet. Fortunately, I still have the old-style light with the detachable plug at the base and, with the cigarette lighter attachment cord, was able to treat the horse right by the truck. In half an hour it was grazing and she played it again two days later. I also used purple on a polo player who was thrown heavily and had a very painful back, with the same results - except he didn't eat grass after.

Heidi Dobbie
Bioptron Therapist
Works on a polo farm