

HORSE KNEE INJURY

A demonstration of Bioptron on the knee of a thoroughbred injured in transit to Karaka proved quite spectacular. Light therapy was used on the badly swollen knee and at the end of the day the handler strapped the knee with padding and an elastic bandage tightly over, above and below the knee. The next day the report from the stable was " we can't believe it - the bandage fell down overnight and the knee was back to normal !!!"
