

SCAR, SORE EYES, DIABETES

A friend recommended that I start coming for Bioptron treatments for a painful scar which I had from an operation on my submandibular salivary gland. The scar was very tight and painful. I had the operation about 5 months earlier. Because I'm also diabetic and on insulin pills, which I started taking about 4 years ago, and I had problems with my eyes getting tired and sore quite often, I decided to try Bioptron out on these complaints as well.

I had the treatments about 3- times a week, with the Bioptron 2 and the colour therapy. At the same time I was taking Heel homeopathic drops for my diabetes. With the insulin pills my sugar levels were about 12. After about 3 weeks of using the homeopathic drops, and light therapy, together with the same amount of pills as before, my blood sugar levels dropped from 12 down to 6 and have remained there.

My eyes no longer get tired or sore and my scar is no longer tight or painful. Because the light has helped me with my health problems I have decided to keep coming for regular treatments. I would like to recommend to anyone with similar complaints to definitely give the Bioptron a go.
