

SEVERE FOOT INJURY WITH SEVERE PAIN

While visiting in hospital, a young man was in a wheelchair with his leg heavily bandaged from below the knee to his toes. He told me the weight from a forklift truck had fallen on his foot, crushing it. He had already had 6 operations on it to repair all the bones, but they had had to remove a toe because of gangrene and he risked losing his whole foot because of it.

He was not able to take strong painkillers and the pain and throbbing prevented him from sleeping properly. I just happened to have my light and colours on me.....

I used purple and after a few minutes he exclaimed that it felt like ants running around under the bandage. While I was using the orange on his foot (bones) he suddenly gasped and said "It's not throbbing any more!" He started yawning his head off, saying how tired he was. I sent him away to sleep pain-free.
