

BAD ECZEMA, DERMATITIS, CRADLE CAP, AND REFLUX

20th May 2003, Auckland

My five-month-old daughter Caitlin has suffered for a while with bad eczema on her face, ears, neck, elbows, back of the knees and ankles. She had dermatitis as well and cradle cap. For reflux, she was put on losec.

I was recommended by a friend of mine to give the Biopton light and colour therapy a go. I decided to try it in mid March. For the first 10 treatments, Caitlin had a half an hour every second day and her skin came right completely. The eczema is no longer visible, there are no signs of dermatitis or cradle cap and she has come off losec and has no reflux any more.

Now she has one treatment a week just for maintenance and eats and sleeps well and grows as a very healthy and happy baby.

I do recommend to all mothers that have got babies with similar problems to give the Biopton a go. They are completely safe and babies do enjoy them.

Sincerely,

Siobhan Harrod.
