

RAW FINGERS

Two years ago I was gardening with un-gloved hands. The next day my finger started to hurt. I thought I had a prickle in it and tried to get it out with a needle. The next thing I knew, the skin started to peel until I had a completely raw fingertip. This looked like it was at least three layers deep. For about four days I tried all my natural treatments, but nothing seemed to work. I decided to go to the doctor and they informed me it was quite serious and I was given a dose of antibiotics. I took the antibiotics for five days with not the slightest bit of improvement. I left it for a few more days and then returned to the medical centre, I was seen by a different doctor, and this doctor diagnosed a fungal infection and gave me some fungal medication and ointment to apply. However all this was to no avail. Several months later, my finger was still raw and I decided to try the Bioptron light that I had heard about. A Bioptron agent came to my house and performed a treatment on me and within a couple of hours I knew that my finger had improved by at least 10%. I then purchased my own light and having carried out treatments every day for a week, my finger had completely healed. The Bioptron light has been great to me, I love being able to help myself and I can use it on so many different things for both myself and for my family.

Marcella Popplewell
18th April 2008