

SCAR, CUT AND DYING NERVE IN TOOTH

Zepter NZ Ltd Auckland

5 October 2000

I bought a Bioptron Compact in October last year and use it in my practice nearly every day.

Whilst there have been many successes over the year there are some that stand out more than others because of the speed with which recovery is achieved and which I personally believe would have not been possible without the light.

One young lady had a nerve dying in a front tooth and after 3 treatments was delighted to get the feeling back and be able to bite on the tooth without pain.

However, the two most significant results have come from within my own family. My daughter Suzanne had a nasty purple scar on her right eyebrow from walking into an open cupboard door before we got the light. It was only some months later that I decided to try the light to see if it could reduce the vivid colour and prominence of the scar.

After only a few treatments the colour reduced to almost natural skin colour and with ongoing treatment the prominent "overhealing" has begun to reduce back to the original skin level.

Her daughter Rebekah had an accident 2 weeks ago as they were moving house. She ran into a chest of drawers being moved and split her cheek open just below the right eye. Fortunately the light was handy and after only 3 treatments in two days the split was sufficiently healed to not require stitching or even having to visit the doctor. She had a black eye from the impact but the bruising quickly disappeared with ongoing treatment. Today there is hardly a mark on her cheek.

To anyone who is hesitant about using the light let me reassure them that in my case it is the first thing I reach for to treat so many different wound, skin and health problems.

Yours sincerely

Christine Laird
