May the Inukshuk be your guide for a safe journey throughout Life's travels.

Let it always guide you home.

The Inukshuk (pronounced IN-OOK-SHOOK) meaning "in the image of man", are magnificent lifelike figures of stone which were erected by the Inuit people and are unique to the Canadian Arctic.

Standing along Canada's most northern shores, they endure as eternal symbols of leadership, encouraging the importance of friendship and reminding us of our dependence upon one another.

In the Baffin region of Canada's Arctic, the traditional meaning of an Inukshuk was to act as a compass or guide for a safe journey. The Inukshuk, like ancient trackers, helped guide people seeking their way through the wilderness. An Inukshuk on land with two arms and legs means there is a valley. At the end of this valley, you will be able to go in two directions. Today, this serves as a reminder that we always have a choice in the direction we choose to take in our lives.

In the Nine Gates of Healing the reference to Choice is between health and disease.

Erected to make the way easier and safer for those who follow, an Inukshuk represents safety and nourishment, trust and reassurance.

The Inukshuk guided people across the frozen tundra and gave them hope in barren places to handle hardships they encountered. These primitive, stone images showed the way ahead... pointing you in the direction you wanted to go. Had they been able to speak, I am certain they would have said... "Here is the road. It is safe. You can meet the demands that this path holds. You can reach your goals and attain your vision of where you want to be."

What is true about the Inukshuk is true about people.

The Inukshuk is a reminder for all of us that our efforts towards the common good of our earth community are appreciated. It is an enduring symbol that invites us to speak with one another on a higher level, from our hearts and spirit, about what really matters in life.

Catabolism

The chemical reaction that break down complex organic molecules and polymers into simpler ones are collectively know as catabolism. Catabolic reactions release the available chemical energy in organic molecules. This chemical energy is captured in an easy to use form by phosphorylating ADP to create ATP. Important sets of catabolic reactions are those occurring in glycolosis the Krebs Cycle and the electron transport chain/. Glycolosis consist of the breakdown of a glucose molecule. Sugars. Which has six Carbon atoms into two Pyruvic acid molecules with three carbons each.
