Understand factors contributing to skin aging

80%

Collagen is one of the most important proteins in the human body. It accounts for 30% of total protein and represents 80% of dry mass of skin. Primarily located in connective tissue, it is responsible for providing structure.

Aging skin is a result in the decrease of collagen in the dermis – the region where few topical cosmetic products have effective action.

External Factors

Skin is affected by both – dermal layer structure and environmental factors including aging, ultraviolet radiation, hormones and nutrition. Because of this, the dermis becomes thinner; the connective tissue loses firmness and elasticity, and wrinkles and sagging occur. VERISOL® can slow these skin metabolism impairing processes which cause loss of collagenous extracellular matrix.

Natural skin aging process

- During the aging process, the skin suffers a loss of moisture and becomes increasingly dry. From the age of 30, the performance of fibroblasts and thus collagen synthesis is reduced. This intensifies after menopause.

VERISOL® – How it works

- 1

Oral daily intake of 2.5 g VERISOL®
- 2

Bioactive Collagen Peptides® stimulate the skin cells to produce more collagen
- 3

Changes in the skin structure with increased collagen
- 4

Daily intake of only 2.5 g VERISOL® stimulates collagen metabolism of skin and its results are seen from the inside out

VERISOL® can slow this process, delaying signs of aging by smoothing the formation of wrinkles and improving the elasticity and firmness of skin.
