Can you ensure that your employees can receive immediate first aid attention if injured or taken ill at work?

Are your first aid kits up to date?

Carry out a risk assessment to help decide what the hazard levels are and how many employees need to be covered.

The below tables categorises workplaces by level of risk, and recommends an appropriate size of kit.

What size of kit do I need?

SUPPLEMENTARY FIRST AID KITS

WHEN DO I NEED A SUPPLEMENTARY FIRST AID KIT?

If you have lone workers or those who work away from the workplace, such as security, cleaners, or maintenance staff, a personal issue kit enables basic first aid to be provided quickly and easily.

If you have employees who are at risk of a severe life-threatening bleed or in the event of a mass-casualty attack, a critical injury pack is required as standard first aid kits are not appropriately equipped.

	PERSONAL ISSUE	CRITICAL INJURY
Bandage, Triangular	1	0

CRITICAL INJURY

For life threatening injuries and catastrophic bleeds

CRITICAL INJURY PACK IN STOCKHOLM BAG

The critical injury pack is designed to provide immediate, life-saving first aid to someone who has sustained a severe bleeding injury in the workplace.

Recent Health and Safety guidance now recommends employers provide haemostatic dressings and tourniquets in their first aid provisions for employees working with an identified risk of obtaining severe bleeding injuries.

The critical injury pack is designed to be issued one per person (obviously only to employees exposed to the risk). The injured person then has their pack used on them, rather than a first-aid kit using their pack on someone else.
