As an artist and designer, it's a given that Terra Palmer would be a believer in the power of beautiful scenery. She knows it can change the way people live and move throughout their lives, and today, she uses that belief to help her clients transform their interior spaces into a unique reflection of who they are and who they want to become.

"I have a passion for architecture, and this allows me to see beyond the boundaries of four walls," she says. "I'm known for my ability to maximize space, and I strongly believe in the harmony of architecture, landscape, and interiors. It takes all three to truly encapsulate the ultimate home design."

Believing that each house should have its own unique personality, Terra juxtaposes different styles and eras, encouraging her clients to filter, mix, and take risks with their own styles. "I look at the whole picture to understand my clients distinctive personalities and lifestyles," she says. "I take the time to truly learn and observe, and I help my clients really step into and embrace the bigger picture. This is how harmony is achieved, and it's how I create spaces where my clients can truly feel good about themselves and their environment."
