WHAT IS IT?

HEAT TRANSFER - Heat Transfers are special plastisol inks that are screen printed onto transfer paper and then applied to a garment. This process allows the printing of images with complex and intricate details. It also allows for gradient color.

HIGH DENSITY GEL - High Density is a process that adds texture and depth to a graphic. Plastisol ink is printed through a special screen that corrals the ink within a limited area creating a print that rises up to 1/8 inch above the fabric's surface.
