COMMUTEMATE INSTACLOTH

The wrecking crew laughed when we first saw a $3.49 box of InstaCloths. Then we tried them and the laughing stopped.

Features: The InstaCloths look like a big breath mint (or small horse pill). Pull one out of the pack, squirt it with your waterbottle and it transforms into a 10x8.5-inch towel. They come eight in a box and are sold at Sears and automotive stores. You can get more info on the CommuteMate InstaCloth by calling (888) 722-5240.

MBA Rating: ★★☆☆ This silly little product is now a staple in our hydration packs. We use them for cleaning hands after repairing a drivetrain hiccup on the trail or wiping off a tube before repairing it. They work great for a quick clean up at the lunch break on your ride, at the end of an endless climb and after a ride. Plus, they work lots better than a handful of leaves for you know what. □
