Red Clay started in Charleston, SC, where Geoff Rhyne, a local acclaimed culinary talent who worked as Executive Chef in Charleston’s top restaurants, created a bourbon-barrel aged hot sauce perfect for oysters. Molly Fienning, a Harvard-educated proven leader and CEO of Babiators, joined forces with Rhyne to create a modern food brand intended to reshape the industry.

The crew has now evolved into a small but mighty team of eight dynamic high-achievers who each excel in each of their departments. The full line up has now expanded into a variety of hot sauces, hot honeys, drink salts, seasoning blends, and spicy pepper conserve.

At its heart, Red Clay values family and community above all else. Nothing is better than gathering around a table and sharing a meal with loved ones—especially when it’s accompanied by good, nourishing food.
We take time to produce Red Clay thoughtfully and with care. Conceived in a chef's kitchen, not a lab.
