REDKNOT AXIS

The Redknot Axis is the revolution in campervan conversions you've been waiting for. Designed for both DIY and professional converters alike, the Axis is a standalone module that integrates hot and cold water, 12V & 240V electrics and gas system into the smallest and lightest unit possible. Made to make T5 to T6.1 campervan conversions quicker, easier and to remove the doubt and confusion that many have when designing a suitable integrated system.

Built in a controlled factory environment, the Axis is provided with all the difficult jobs done, ready to tuck away in a compact corner of your conversion. It comes with a pre-cut and finished furniture set that is guaranteed to fit perfectly with furniture provided in numerous different finishes to match any design aesthetic. What's more, the Axis is delivered with all electrics (12V and 240V) tested by Redknot and underwritten with a pressure tested gas system, so every delivery comes complete with the required safety certificates allowing you to camp with confidence.

What about fitting? It couldn't be easier! It comes delivered with an easy-to-follow installation guide. Simply use the provided template to locate the correct position in your campervan, drill three holes where directed (or just two if you're using internal water tanks), bolt it in and you're good to start connecting up to the plug and play connectors.

The complete Axis installation takes no more than a day. And, if in doubt Redknot's expert team will be more than happy to support your installation. Don't fancy tackling it yourself? Redknot are also offering free installation for VWT readers in their Lancashire workshop. Just quote 'VWT' when you place your order.

Want one? Axis is available for sale online or simply get in touch on 01995 488477 - they'll happily talk you through the options or arrange a demo. Awesome!
