

How to:

Get your $h!t together this Christmas

so you can sit back and enjoy

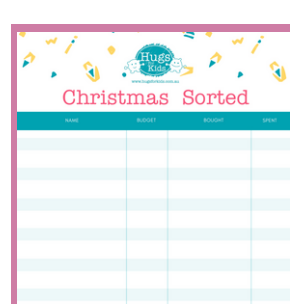

Find Somewhere Quiet

Send the kids and other distractions, anywhere else, (or find a quiet place away) sit down, grab a cuppa (or glass of wine) and get excited!

Print this

Either, print this list or grab a note pad and calculator

Get Started

Write down the names of everyone that you usually buy gifts for at Christmas, use a different page for the kids, ladies, men and couples so it makes shopping easier.

Now to Budget

Next to each name, write down if you have a budget, then Add it up. Are you happy with that as a budget for Christmas this year?

Don't forget to add in a little buffer for someone who might not be getting any presents this year, consider your own secret santa!

Start Shopping

Support your local small businesses, check the local facebook pages for recommendations or Jump online and get shopping, our favourites this year are:

Hugs for Kids has a great gift finder so you can choose the age of the child and filter by price, even choose their favourites - super easy for all the kids!

Farkewemporium has some totally inappropriate for kids gifts for the adults in your life, to bid 2020 farewell.

Butter Mafia has the most criminal brownies, now you can give the gift of being able to make the most delicious brownies on the planet!

The Swag have the greatest produce bags to keep good food fresher for longer, a great practical gift for the person who has everything!

Keep Taking Notes

Write everything down as you go, so that when it arrives you know who it's for and you can stay on budget. When the gifts arrive highlight them so you know you're done!

Wait for the Deliveries

A really cool App to look at is 17track, you enter in all of your tracking numbers and can see where they are, it tracks international and local deliveries and is free for up to 40 tracking numbers (once you've received the parcels, delete them so you don't go over your 40)

Sit Back and Relax

Now the hard work is done, sit back and relax. Enjoy being the organised one who can enjoy the festivities during the silly season without having to race to the shops or stress about forgetting anyone.

www.hugsforkids.com.au