Maha Mala

Created in the capital city that is the heatland of India, Maha Mala designs Beautiul 108 bead necklaces using both the traditional Rudraksha seed & the healing vibrations of semi-precious stones and crystals. These necklaces (known as Malas in Hindi) can be used as spirtual jewellery or as japa malas (japa is the practice of mantra recitaions).

Each piece has been hand strung together using beautiful semi-precious stones that are sources from Jaipur, known as the city of gems, in India. Each piece has been made keeping in mind not only the aesthetic look but also the benificial healing properties that are inherent in the semi-precious stones. Thus each Maha Mala piece becomes a beautifully potent energetic tool in the constant search for meaning in our own lives.

For both varieties of Ahimsa silk Maha Mala supports two different organizations that focus on keeping the Local craft traditions alive whilst allowing the artisans to have an income.

The backbone of Maha Mala lies in the principals of 'Ahimsa' and social conscientiousness, Ahimsa means no-violence or non - violence. Maha Mala works with smaller communities of craftsmen and women to source Ahimsa silk (a farming process which leaves the silk worm unharmed) for the Mala tassels.

The Ahimsa silk tassels come in two varieties—the finer machine spun cariety are dyed using azo free d ues, (azo is a chemical compund used commonly in the textile industry which is a known carcinogenic) and the hand spun, eath dyed Eri silk (these tassels are au natural, they look raw and rough and that's why we love them!)

Each of our products also comes with a Khadi pouch. Khadi is an organic, hand spun and hand woven cotton which was worn and promoted by Mahatma Gandhi in his efforts to convince the Indian population that they could be self reliant in the afe where cotton clothes were being bought from the British.

This Khadi cloth we buy comes from the small town of Wardha in the middle of India, a place where Gandhi founded the Magan Sangrahalaya Samiti (MSS), the first museum of rural industries and Khadi fabric.

One nain focus of the MSS is the Khadi wing-the fabric they produce is spun on the traditional chakra (spinning wheel) and dyed using natural dyes, the patterns are then block printed by hand.

Furthermore, back in Delhi, where Maha Mala is based, the fabric is sewn together by the women of the Ek Tara Foundation, a foundation that provides vocational skills to underprivileged adults in the capital.

Each product also comes with a printed tag stating the stones used and the benifical properties of the stones.

Combining the metaphysical benificial properties of stones and crystals together with the traditional seeds and wood of India, Maha Mala has on offer 7+ different ranges with both bracelets to suit each individual in their search for a meaningful life whilst ensuring the person who helped create the product benefits as well.

Maha Mala believes in non violence, supports local artisans, buys fair trade and is a fair trade small business run by Piya Jain.

Deliciously Simple is our classical range. Here a single stone is more predominant with accents of other gemstones that help amplify the properties of the main stone. This range is simple, elegant and timeless.

Tejas features bigger stones at 8mm in diameter. The word Tejas means 'Inner Light Rising' or 'Radiance' and each of the malas have been named after the great adepts of yoga in India. This range is an ode to the founding lights that made yoga as we know of today. Originally designed for men, these malas are longer and chunkier and have super vibrations.

Indian Deity features malas which are designed around Indian Gods and Goddesses. The stones within each mala embody the attributes of the related deities. These malas are some of our best selling with a stunning mix of stones. This range also has matching bracelets.

Vedanta is our more traditional range. We have combined the use of natural seeds and wood (such as Rudraksha and Tulsi) together with semi - precious stones. A great range for those who wish to keep things more traditional.
