Maha Mala

Created in the capital city that is the heartland of India, Maha Mala designs beautiful 108 bead necklaces using both the traditional Rudraksha seed & the healing vibrations of semi-precious stones and crystals. These necklaces (known as Malas in Hindi) can be used as spiritual jewellery or as japa malas (japa is the practice of mantra recitations).

Each piece has been hand strung together using beautiful semi-precious stones that are sourced from Jaipur, known as the city of gems, in India. Each piece has been made keeping in mind not only the aesthetic look but also the beneficial healing properties that are inherent in these semi-precious stones. Thus each Maha Mala piece becomes a beautifully potent energetic tool in the constant search for meaning in our own lives.

For both varieties of Ahimsa silk Maha Mala supports two different organizations that focus on keeping the local craft traditions alive whilst allowing the artisans to have an income.

The backbone of Maha Mala lies in the principles of 'Ahimsa' and social conscientiousness, Ahimsa means no-violence or non-violence. Maha Mala works with smaller communities of craftsmen and women to source Ahimsa silk (a farming process which leaves the silkworm unharmed) for the mala tassels.

The Ahimsa silk tassels come in two varieties- the finer machine spun variety are dyed using azo free dyes, (azo is a chemical compound used commonly in the textile industry which is a known carcinogenic) and the hand spun, earth dyed Eri silk (these tassels are all natural, they look raw and rough and that's why we love them!).

Each of our products also comes with a Khadi pouch. Khadi is an organic, hand spun and hand woven cotton which was worn and promoted by Mahatma Gandhi in his efforts to convince the Indian population that they could be self reliant in the afe where cotton clothes were being bought from the British.

This Khadi cloth we buy comes from the small town of Wardha in the middle of India, a place where Gandhi founded the Magan Sangrahalaya Samiti (MSS), the first museum of rural industries and Khadi fabric.

One nain focus of the MSS is the Khadi wing- the fabric they produce is spun on the traditional chakra (spinning wheel) and dyed using natural dyes, the patterns are then block printed by hand.

Furthermore, back in Delhi, where Maha Mala is based, the fabric is sewn together by the women of the Ek Tara Foundation, a foundation that provides vocational skills to underprivileged adults in the capital.

Each product also comes with a printed tag stating the stones used and the beneficial properties of the stones.

Combining the metaphysical beneficial properties of stones and crystals together with the traditional seeds and wood of India, Maha Mala has on offer 7+ different ranges with both bracelets to suit each individual in their search for a meaningful life whilst ensuring wach person who helped create the product benefits as well.

Maha Mala believes in non violence, supports local artisans, buys fair trade and is a fair trade small business run by Piya Jain.

Range Introduction:

Aksh features the Rudraksha seed (holy seed of India) with smaller delicate faceted crystals and an Ahimsa Silk tassel. The beauty of this range is that they are strung on elastic allowing the malas to be either worn as necklaces or wrapped around the wrist as bracelets. This range also has matching bracelets.

Be True Be You is our bracelet range which is great for everyday wear. Two different stones or seeds are combined to create a bracelet strung on high strength elastic chord with an added feature of a mini ahimsa silk tassel.

Link Chains feature 3.5 mm faceted stones which are lovingly hand linked on 32.5 silver wire to form a necklace and then 22k gold plated. This work is very traditionally Indian. The necklaces are long and dainty, each mala contains 108 beads and there can be used for chanting or worn as jewellery.

Minis is our small, simple and cute bracelet range. Made out of one type of stone, it is a sweet accessory to be worn on a daily basis and at the same time absorbing the benefits of the stone vibrations of your choice. One can wear them stacked on single.
