Finally ... last but not least there is one 225g tub of Surya Brasil Color Fixation Restorative Hair Mask available to the lucky winner, which I have not reviewed before but which I used at the weekend. The mask is creamy in texture and has a fresh scent. The directions are simple. Wash your hair, scoop a little of the mask out and massage it into your hair from root to tip. Leave the mask in your hair for about 15mins – my advise, wait until you are having a bath and then apply it – it will mean that not only will your body be relaxed but your hair will be super conditioned too ... or another suggestion from YourTonic, which I will try to use the mask as a

“... treatment with a thermal cap or hot towel.”

The Restorative Hair Mask, like the other Color Fixation products does not contain Parabens, mineral oil, synthetic colours or fragrances. It contains cupuaçu butter and buriti oil which absorbs the sun's ultraviolet rays. It also contains 15 herbal extracts from India and the Amazon Forest along with rice proteins, that leave your hair feeling restored and rejuvenated. It retails at €10.99.

Next up is the Surya Brasil Color Fixation, Single Application Restorative Hair Mask. It comes in a 30ml bottle and if you missed my original post about this little treasure you can read it here. This 'double duty serum' acts intensively on the hair strand, it usually costs about €3.45 from YourTonic.com.

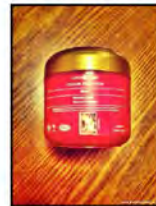

I'm delighted to team up with YourTonic.com to be able to offer one lucky reader of The Life of Stuff, three fabulous products from the Surya Brasil Color Fixation range.

Up for grabs is one 300ml Surya Brasil Color Fixation Leave-In Conditioner, which I swear by and which I have used ever since I tried it last month. I got great feedback on this product, with lots of readers wanting to try it. You can read the post I wrote about it here, just in case you missed it! It's retail value is €10.99.

Surya Brasil – Color Fixation – Single Application – Restorative Hair Mask

“Surya Brasil offers unique body care products including natural hair color and organic body care using sustainable Amazonian plants, innovative manufacturing techniques and biodegradable packaging. The company offers beauty, health and well-being with Brazilian flair! (www.suryabrasilproducts.com)

Wondering why I've spelt colour as color – well that's how the brazilians spell it. Surya Brasil – Color Fixation is as the name implies a brazilian product. Made from rice protein that strengthens the cuticle of the hair, Cupuassu Butter which absorbs the sun's ultraviolet rays, Buriti Oil which is an antioxidant, anti-inflammatory and is photo-protective ... and 15 Herb and Natural Exotic Fruit Extracts from India and the Amazon forest, it sounds like the best smoothie on earth for your hair!

I got the chance to try it out over the weekend in the shape of the Restorative Hair Mask. It usually costs about €3.45 and is supposed to be used as a single application but because my hair isn't very long, I actually got two goes out of it. It's used as a deep treatment for dry or coloured hair and as I am blessed (or cursed) with naturally curly hair that is coloured ... it called out my name.
