Derek Welsh is a woodworker and furniture designer who lives and works in Glasgow. Having started as an apprentice at a small carpentry and joinery firm in Scotland, he has worked with wood for over twenty five years and stayed true to his craft training. His work reflects his regard for the many abilities (and limitations) of the human hand, the joys of crafting manually and the rigour it demands.

The Derek Welsh Collection for Phantom Hands came together between Bangalore and Glasgow, in the midst of a world halted by COVID. The collection celebrates simplicity and traditional joinery techniques that emphasize the handmade. A stool, bookshelf and chair are the first products from the collection.

INODA+SVEJE

The philosophy of Indian Modernism that originated in Chandigarh in the 1950s is carried forward in collaboration with contemporary Milan based designers INODA+SVEJE.

Their collections, Tangali and Mungaru, were developed alongside the artisans of Phantom Hands using innovative craft techniques.

Tangali, meaning cool breeze, is crafted from reclaimed teak with the contours of each piece completely shaped by hand and finished with woven cane wrapped meticulously around wooden frames in the signature Tangali style. The Mungaru Collection draws inspiration in equal parts from the modernist legacy of Chandigarh's mid-century furniture, and the level of skill that traditional Indian craft based production offers.

X+L

X+L is Xander Vervoort and Leon van Boxtel - Amsterdam-based designers whose collaboration with the craftsmen of Phantoms Hands in India is an homage to mid-century design and the raw beauty of timber.

With a background in theatre and art, they founded their studio in 1996, and their inspiration often comes from art and architecture with an appreciation for basic structures, honest materials and simplicity of thought.

Working together with makers in India they have created handmade objects that are unique and produced in very small numbers. As the studio consists of just the two founders, their close work alongside artisan friends enables them to maintain the very personal view that is X+L.

WOOD FINISHES

BLACK STAIN

For black finish, the wood the wood is sprayed with an eco friendly water based paint (ral 9005) that leaves the grains and patterns visible.

BLUE FINISH

For blue finish, the wood the wood is sprayed with an eco friendly water based paint (ral 5002) that leaves the grains and patterns visible.

For DW 01 only.

DARK TEAK

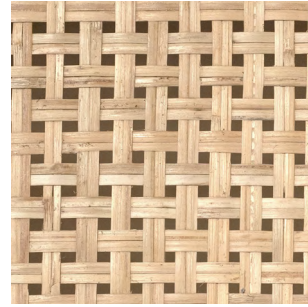

For dark stain, a coat of teak stain is applied by hand to give the wood a deeper, darker shade.

NATURAL TEAK

For natural teak finish, transparent wood polish and sealer are applied with a soft cloth to bring out the natural golden brown colour of teak. Please note, each batch of teak is unique and actual shade may vary a little from the reference image.
