

Post & Go Mail Coach to stay at The Postal Museum

LONDON, 17 March 2016 – The Postal Museum is pleased to announce that from Friday 1 April, it will be exclusively offering a digitally printed version of the Mail Coach stamp from the Royal Mail Heritage: Transport Post & Go set. This will replace the full set which will be available until Thursday 31 March and will be available in all values.

The stamps can be purchased from the A001 Post & Go machine located at Freeling House, The Postal Museum's present offices. The issue will be available from 10am.

Related philatelic products will be available to purchase from The Postal Museum's online shop - shop.postalmuseum.org

NOTES TO EDITORS

- The Postal Museum is the leading resource for all aspects of British history through the postal service. With collections ranging from staff records to stamps, poster design to photography and from transport to telegrams, it cares for visual, written and physical records. The Royal Mail Archive and GPO (General Post Office) Film Unit are listed on the UNESCO Memory of the World Register. Records in the Royal Mail Archive are Designated as being of outstanding national importance by the Arts Council. For more information see www.postalmuseum.org.
- Due to open in 2017, The Postal Museum will reveal five centuries of British social and communications history as seen through the eyes of its iconic postal service. Alongside permanent exhibition galleries and a temporary exhibition space, the BPMA plans to open up a section of Mail Rail, the old Post Office Underground Railway including a ride through some of the original tunnels. To find out more about this unique project please visit the BPMA project website postalmuseum.org.
