The Okinawa range is inspired from my trip to Japan. After getting my black belt at the age of thirteen I was lucky enough to attend the IOGKF world Budosai. The Budosai is a gathering that happens every 4 years, made up of karateka from around the world who come to train in the origin place of Goju Ryu karate. My trip to Okinawa was an eye opening experience that taught me a lot about the Japanese culture and traditions.

I felt this smooth visually balanced shape best represented to my trip to Okinawa, telling the story of an eye opening experience that taught me a lot about the Japanese culture and traditions. Teaching us balance in life is hard but is the key to a long happy live.
