

ChatterVox for Military/Law Enforcement

Whether it's for internal training or use in operations or crowd control, the ChatterVox is a far better alternative than the traditional bull horn. For indoor activities, the most popular ChatterVox for law enforcement is the Original ChatterVox Complete Plus. If your application takes you outdoors you may want the added volume of the ChatterVox Super Sized Model 6. This model is better suited for larger crowds.

There are many military or law enforcement applications where high quality portable voice amplification is useful. The traditional "bull horn" is harsh sounding and requires the use of your hand. ChatterVox amplification systems offer a variety of amplifiers and microphones for any application. ChatterVox systems are traditionally worn around the waist and are hands free so they are effective with any level of physical movement. They can be used for training applications, as well as crowd control. Any situation where your officers need to be heard can benefit from ChatterVox systems.

Benefits to Officers:

Like it or not it's a proven fact that raising your voice does several things. First, it scares the person you are interacting with. Scared people are more likely to do stupid things. Secondly, it projects to the person you are interacting with and all spectators that you are not in control and are trying desperately to be in control. That does not help the situation. Go ahead and speak in your normal voice and let the ChatterVox crank up the volume so everyone you are interacting can hear you clearly.

Benefits in Crowd Control:

Regardless of all the posters with instructions in the airport TSA lines, most people don't read them. TSA officers yell out instructions to remove laptops, shoes, belts, jackets, and people don't hear them and they end up having to go back through the line slowing everything down. When TSA officers wear ChatterVox amplification systems, people can hear them much more easily and are much more compliant. The lines move more quickly, everyone wins. It also is a much more professional environment when the officers are not yelling at the crowd.

Total portability.

The ChatterVox is extremely light weight and comfortable to use with a variety of microphones to accommodate anyone. ChatterVox systems are not subject to interference, all of your officers can be using ChatterVox at the same time without interference.

How does it work?
