

ChatterVox for Teachers

ChatterVox voice amplifiers are used daily in classrooms all over the world from pre-school to the best colleges. Why are major universities, high schools, middle schools, and elementary schools budgeting for additional ChatterVox purchases? The answer is simple – ChatterVox in the classroom is a win-win-win proposition for teachers, students, and schools.

Benefits to Teachers:

Teach all day long in your natural voice – let ChatterVox do the amplifying.

It's a well known fact that many teachers strain their voice all day long to the point of exhaustion. In many cases, teachers can actually develop voice nodules which can permanently damage their vocal cords. Instead of straining the voice, speak naturally and let ChatterVox do the amplifying. After using the ChatterVox, many teachers report that they are able to go home at night with far more energy than they ever recall. And talk about cheap insurance to protect a critical asset - your voice.

Total Portability:

ChatterVox is extremely light weight and comfortable to use with a variety of microphones to accommodate anyone. ChatterVox is not classroom dependent – it works anywhere in your school. ChatterVox can come with you on field trips, in the lunch room, the gym, the bus, on the athletic fields, anywhere. It recharges overnight and is good for fourteen hours of use before it needs to be recharged.

Benefits to Students:

What happens to comprehension when students who are struggling to hear in a classroom can hear without effort? Comprehension goes up. Students learn more efficiently when they can easily hear teachers. Classroom engagement improves. Test scores improve. Grades improve. ChatterVox can create a measurable impact on comprehension, engagement, test scores, and grades.

Benefits to Schools:

Using ChatterVox in the classroom has a number of effects. Schools have happier teachers with less vocal stress, more energy, and less sick time from voice related problems. Students enjoy measurable improvements on their comprehension which translates directly into better test performance and better grades.

How does ChatterVox compare to in-classroom wireless amplification systems?

ChatterVox is vastly superior. Wireless systems are prone to cutting in and out as well as conflicting with other wireless systems. Wireless systems create an additional unnecessary mental process for students to overcome (i.e. I see the teacher's lips moving but the sound is coming from that speaker in the wall and my brain is drawing my attention to the source of the sound and not my teacher so I have to go through an extra processing step with a wireless system). With ChatterVox, the sound is coming from the teacher. The attention is focused on the teacher. Wireless systems are classroom dependent. Leave the classroom and you can't take a wireless system with you. Also, the teacher has the volume control right on the ChatterVox so they can easily dial up the volume for large group instruction or instantly turn it down for one-on-one situations. Oh, and there is that issue of cost. You can outfit a handful of teachers with ChatterVox systems before you can afford one wireless classroom system. ChatterVox is better, and significantly more cost effective.

Testimonials:

“Just a note to thank you for a product that really delivers as promised. The ChatterVox has saved my vocal cords, and allows me to teach three college courses each day without crashing and burning. The batteries are staying charged not only through my long day, but also through several days, before needing a recharge.

Even going up to the board is a 'no-brainer'. NO feedback at all. I do tend to spin the ChatterVox around to the back as I continue writing on the board, so the speaker is facing the class, but I do not necessarily worry about feedback if I fail to do so.

Thank you ChatterVox. I feel my money was well spent. (As an aside... I tried a less expensive version of a mic before this product. It promised to stay charged for eight hours. It did not make it through even one of my college courses, and then needed eight hours to recharge. THAT was a complete waste of my money! By comparison, that was a toy, and this product is a professional mic.)”

(From Professor Amy at the City University of New York)

“Just a quick note to let you know how happy I am with my ChatterVox. I am a childrens' librarian in an elementary school, so I use my voice all day long. Five years ago, my vocal chords became inflamed, and doctors and speech therapists were unable to help. My speech therapist told me about ChatterVox, and the rest is history. I love that my machine is so durable and lightweight. The therapist was very impressed with the tone and quality of its vocal reproduction. The long and short of it is, that ChatterVox saved my career because at 56, I was just not ready to give up a job that I love. Oops, did I mention that the company not only offers a great product at a fair price, but that they offer wonderful service should you need it.”

Thanks,

“I decided to order this as a backup to my first ChatterVox. Your product is amazing. If I didn't have a ChatterVox, there would be absolutely no way that I could be a professor.”

Thanks,
(From Professor John at UCLA)

“I have wanted to thank you for the ChatterVox for over a year now. Each and every day I enjoy the help of my portable voice amplifier as I teach my beginning band students.

A vocal music teacher in our school district introduced ChatterVox to me. She started using it after her surgery for nodes on her vocal cords. I thought that I might buy one so that I could prevent vocal nodules. I told her that I would plan on using it when I had a sore throat or cold. Her exact words to me after I said that were, “Oh, you can try that... but you’ll end up using it every day, all day long!” She was right.

The students can hear my voice as I play a piano accompaniment. I do not need to stop instruction as often with the device. Many students have commented that “my voice sounds nice with the microphone.”

Before ChatterVox I went home to my family at the end of the work day with little voice. My daughter knew the routine...when family members called to chat with me, she told them that “I was on voice rest.” The vocal fatigue was the major factor in causing my overall fatigue at the end of the day.

With Chattervox, my voice is unaffected by the constant voice use each day. I have energy at the end of the work day! I was at a restaurant the other night with family members, and one of my sisters said, “It sure is nice that you can talk to us now during the school year...I’ve noticed that your voice is strong - that ‘thing’ is really working!”

As far as the cost...the Chattervox is worth every cent. When other teachers ask me about it, I tell them that it’s “worth its weight in gold.”

Thank you!
