His/Her fragrance empire started after Coachella festival

A mum-of-two has revealed how she built a perfume empire from her garage after being inspired by an exotic scent she came across on the dancefloor at Coachella. Raquel Bouris, 27, from Cronulla in Sydney's south-east told FEMAIL she was introduced to a woman at the 2017 festival who 'smelled amazing'. Working with her perfumer, and they came up with His/Her a scent she 'absolutely fell in love with' - despite being completely different to the smell that had inspired her. This perfume which combines traditional masculine and feminine notes became the flagship scent for her very own company, 'Who is Elijah?'

Fragrance can be a powerful tool that can not only impact your mood each day but also aid in the exploration of identity and even be a source of comfort during a tough time. Trust us when we say: this perfume exudes sex appeal. Notes of dark leather and spicy cardamom will instantly transport you to an intimate corner of a dark bar. It's a 2023 POPSUGAR Beauty Award winner.

This independently-owned Australian fragrance house makes cruelty-free, genderless concoctions that punch well above their price point. Our pick of the brand's effervescent offering is His | Her, which flaunts head notes of bergamot, violet leaf and cardamom, while a gentle saltwater undertone will make you nostalgic for bygone summer romances.

Meet Fragrances Next "Big" Brand: Who Is Elijah

"Her" is a gender-fluid amber-floral moment that features iconic notes such as Bergamont, Vetiver, Grapefruit and Rosemary. If you can't smell this through your screen, I'm not sure what to tell you. Upon first spritz, I was immediately taken aback and continued through my tiny Soho, New York apartment, spraying in every nook until my head swelled up with the fragrance. Having worn this particular scent alone without layering, I can assure you that it has afforded me a few drinks at a bar from those Wall Street Finance Bros.
