Rhythm, greek rhythmos, derived from rhein, "to flow", "ordered alternation of contrasting elements."

When I first started painting gardens, predominantly flowers, I was determined to capture a moment. Now over a year later I feel I am more concerned with the time and movement in that moment.

I have found different plants demand of me different painting styles and techniques, this is not so much something I think about when I start a new piece but something that happens organically. I like when paint challenges me. In these recent works I knew what I was looking for as a finished piece but so often that would not appear until the very last brush stroke. It was a relationship of balance between myself and the canvas. This body of work allows the paint to be just "paint". When all the mark making is done a scene of sorts is presented to the viewer but for the most part it is purely our own perspective.

Carmel's work primarily concerns observations of her surroundings that resonate with her. Carmel is an emerging multidisciplinary artist who lives in Pirongia with her partner Luke and their children.
