About Meryl Bell & Bell Art

Born in Bridgetown, Western Australia, Meryl Bell began painting Australian native flora in 1974 using oils and techniques similar to those of the great 17th century Dutch floral artists. Creating all of her works from real life, Meryl's superbly realistic images express their brilliant colour and forms with exceptional clarity and botanical accuracy.

Throughout her travels, Meryl would gather references and work closely with botanical experts in order to gain insight into the attributes of species. Meryl worked with fresh flowers, with each major painting taking many months, even years, to complete. At times, she would use a single-hair paintbrush to enable her to capture the exquisitely fine detail of her subjects.

As one of Australia's foremost still life floral artists, Meryl's paintings are featured in notable private collections around the world.

Bell Art evolved from Meryl's desire to capture Australian native flora and share their unique beauty with the world. It gives us all the opportunity to enjoy what she discovered.

It began with the designing, printing and selling of one card more than 35 years ago. Today, her remarkable legacy of over 200 magnificent artworks has been adapted to an exquisite range of aromatics, homewares, exclusive gifts and stationery for all to enjoy.

'Many Australian artists have made us visually aware of the vastness of landscape, the light and colours of the country, but there are also many surprises and pleasures to be found in the intricate structure of Australian plants and their vibrant colouring. If my paintings make people stop for a moment to look, enjoy and wonder, then I have succeeded.'

Trays

A work of art in themselves, these timeless, practical trays capture the essence of Australian beauty merged with Scandinavian design. Hand-made on the beautiful island of Öland by Swedish craftsmen, thin layers of sustainably forested birchwood are pressed together with our native floral designs before a protective melamine coating is applied. Dishwasher safe and foodsafe, for added practicality and peace-of-mind.
